
ECOHEALTH

Volume 2, Number 1

2005

EDITORIAL

- Detecting the Health Effects of Environmental Change: Scientific and Political Challenge 1
Anthony J. McMichael and Rosalie E. Woodruff

COVER ESSAY

- The Grass Is Always Greener 4
Charlotte Šunde

In This Issue 6

What's New? 8

PROFILE

- Systemwide Initiative on Malaria and Agriculture: An Innovative Framework for Research and Capacity Building 11
Clifford M. Mutero, Felix Amerasinghe, Eline Boelee, Eline Flemming Konradsen, Wim van der Hoek, Tendani Nevondo, and Frank Rijsberman

COMMENTARIES

- Peering into the Fog: Ecologic Change, Human Affairs, and the Future 17
Colin Butler

- Focusing on the Future through the Looking Glass: Building Scenarios of Health and Environment 18
Carlos Corvalan and Diarmid Campbell-Lendrum

REVIEW

- Animals as Sentinels of Human Environmental Health Hazards: An Evidence-Based Analysis 26
Peter M. Rabinowitz, Zimra Gordon, Rebecca Holmes, Brynn Taylor, Matthew Wilcox, Daniel Chudnov, Prakash Nadkarni, and F. Joshua Dein

ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTIONS

- Effect of Climate Change on Lyme Disease Risk in North America 38
John S. Brownstein, Theodore R. Holford, and Durland Fish

- Improving Health in Ucayali, Peru: A Multisector and Multilevel Analysis 47
Jennifer Goy and David Waltner-Toews

- Sustainability, Health, and the Human Population 58
Charles W. Fowler

- Urban Sprawl, Water Insecurity, and Enteric Diseases in Children from Mexico City 70
Enrique Cifuentes and Sandra Rodriguez

SHORT COMMUNICATIONS

- Wildfire Smoke, Fire Management, and Human Health 76
David M.J.S. Bowman and Fay H. Johnston

- Impact of Invasive Water Hyacinth (Eichhornia crassipes) on Snail Hosts of Schistosomiasis in Lake Victoria, East Africa 81
Mary L. Plummer

- Acknowledgments 87

A3

On the Cover: The Grass is Always Greener..., by New Zealand artist Kate Lepper. See the Cover Essay, “The Grass Is Always Greener,” by Charlotte Šunde, EcoHealth 2:4–5, 2005. The cover art for this issue was sponsored by the Wildlife Trust, Palisades, New York. Reproduced with the permission of the artist, whose work can be viewed at: <http://katelepper.vc.net.nz>.